An excerpt of a review from The Monthly Review: IN his Imaginary Conversations of Literary Men and Statesmen, Mr. Landor established his right to the title of the English Literary Dramatist. That work displayed no ordinary acquaintance with the great men of antiquity no ordinary enthusiasm and fidelity in personating their characters and feelings, by turns humorous, tender, quaint, or lofty, as the subject required. Without caricature, and without effort, he seemed to place himself in the situation of the individuals represented, and to utter the very words, and suggest the very sentiments which they themselves would or must have done. It was also well observed of that work, that the author succeeded best when going far back into antiquity, and that according to the distance which the object or character contemplated stood from him, so did his views expand, and the more worthy did he become of the admirable models supposed to be imitated, Accordingly, we remember, that his dialogue between Pericles and Sophocles was one of the happiest efforts which his Conversations presented. It is therefore...
