Excerpt: .He died peacefully, Feb. 14, 1867. The next year was somewhat interrupted by the failing health of the appointed preacher, Rev. Ira M. Bidwell. He came from Provincetown Centre Church, having had two very successful years with that people. He says, I really broke down at Provincetown, but had to stop at Wellfleet. He was so completely worn out, that Rev. Horace Moulton came on to finish out the year. There was no special interest. The church kept along with some degree of life, but not so much as at some other seasons. Father Bidwell was converted in 1820, at seventeen years of age, under the labors of Rev. John N. Maffitt; and then united with the Methodist Episcopal Church in Hartford, Conn. In 1823 he was licensed as a local preacher, and the following year joined the Conference. On his first circuit,...
